

ASSISTANCE IN RECOVERY

Improving lives together

FACT SHEET

- Formed in 2002 by Andrew T. Wainwright and Robert Poznanovich, AiR strives to help families and struggling loved-ones overcome addiction and behavioral health problems through consulting, intervention and case management.
- Over seven years, AiR has become the nation's leading behavioral health crisis management company providing consulting, intervention, and recovery management services in all 50 states and around the world.
- Through long-term case management, AiR produces recovery rates with over 80 percent of clients maintaining sobriety and/or an improved quality of life a year after treatment—a 30 percent increase from traditional acute treatments or individually-implemented care plans.
- AiR's Recovery Assistance Program (RAP), a comprehensive, 12 month program, is designed to provide support and accountability by working one-on-one with a designated counselor. In addition to working with the client, AiR maintains collateral contact with the individual's support team and manages his or her ongoing toxicology screening and reporting.
- Andrew Wainwright, AiR founder, CEO and nationally recognized expert on addictions and intervention, frequently appears on CNN's America Morning and is the author of It's Not Okay to Be a Cannibal – How to Stop Addiction from Eating Your Family Alive, a book for families coping with an addicted loved-one.
- AiR maintains offices in eight states and maintains close relationships with treatment centers and behavioral health resources worldwide.

AiR, Assistance in Recovery provides the most comprehensive tools available to improve rates of recovery and quality of life for organizations, individuals and families. Treating addiction, eating disorders, and mental health issues as chronic conditions, AiR dramatically improves the lives of countless clients and leads the industry in its programs and innovative attitude towards consulting, intervention, treatment, and case management.
